Early Opener Enormous Success

If the turnout at Deer Creek was any indication, the early opener of the fishing season on four popular Utah waters was a tremendous success.

Farnk Hill, owner of the Charleston Bridge Boat Camp, said, "It is the best turnout I have ever seen in my years here . . . it is beyond our wildest imagination."

At one point, there were well over one hundred boats in the Charleston bay area. All of the launching facilities on the lake had good crowds and the shores were lined with opening day fisherman.

Those on the bank were taking trout planted this spring while those in boats were taking planters as well as some good-sized holdovers. An occasional bass was turning up for those fishing along the cliffs on the far side of the lake.

In an effort to maximize fishing opportunities, the Division of Wildlife Resources decided to open Deer Creek and three other waters early this season. Positive feelings toward the early opener were expressed by most anglers.

Mother Nature cooperated with the DWR provided the best weather this spring for the opener. Those who weren't taking fish were enjoying the sun. Even if fishing was slow, it was still hard to complain on a such a beautiful day.

Deer Creek will remain open through the remainder of the season. Success of the early season will probably encourage more open waters on next year's proclamation.

Docking space at floating piers moved from Utah lake State Park to Deer Creek Reservoir was at premium.
